A special graphic marking will allow the participant to distinguish the "selectable for the next round" player(s), on the website.

By default, for the finals, only the player(s) designated by the Participant in the previous Round as "selectable for the next round" under the conditions of article 4.1.2 and qualified for the next Round, will automatically be renewed.

In the event that one of the Participant's chosen team members is knocked out, any Participant who does not replace said player, as per the conditions set forth in article 4.2.1, will continue to take part in the Contest with one less player in their team.

4.1.1.2. The Participant has the option of replacing one of the players in his/her team, either who is still in the draw for the next Round or who has been knocked out, with another player who is still in the draw, as per the conditions set forth in article 4.1.2. hereunder.

Any change in the composition of the Participant's team must be before the start of the match in the Round, the players that the participant wishes to replace and before the start of the match in the Round of players that the participants wishes to add to his team.

Any change in the choice of the player used for the "Duration Challenge" as well as in the answer given for the "Duration Challenge", must be made before the start of the match in the Round.

4.1.2. Use of Yellow Balls in the game

Every Participant has a set of Yellow Balls to use in each Round of the game and which are not carried over to the next Round of the game. The sets are made up of:

- ten (10) Yellow Balls for each Round of the game up to, and including, the quarter-finals
- five (5) Yellow Balls for the semi-finals
- three (3) Yellow Balls for the finals

These Yellow Balls will allow the participants to activate three (3) different options during each round of the tournament:

- Option no.1: The "player change" which allows him during the tournament to remove a player from his team (without the latter being eliminated) and to replace him with another player still running on the relevant Game Turn.
 - One (1) yellow ball = one (1) player change
- Option no.2: The activation of the bonus question (Duration Challenge) which allows him to win additional points as described in article 3.1.3 and under the conditions of article 4.3.2.
 - One (1) yellow ball = one (1) activation of the Duration Challenge.
- Option no.3: The increase of Victory Points on the players chosen by the Participant under the conditions of article 4.3.1.2
 - One (1) yellow ball = victory points are doubled (x2)
 - Two (2) yellow balls = victory points tripled (x3)

4.1.3. Earning additional Yellow Balls

Participants can earn extra Yellow Balls by recruiting new Game Participants (by using the friend referral code given to Participants by the organiser):

- one (1) or two (2) players recruited = one (1) additional Yellow Ball
- three (3) or four (4) players recruited = two (2) additional Yellow Balls
- five (5) or more players recruited = three (3) additional Yellow Balls

4.2. Points to play for

4.2.1. The points awarded for a win by the Participant's chosen team members in each Round of the Tournament.

4.2.1.1. Participants are awarded points for every win by a member of their team in each Round of the Tournament (hereinafter referred to as “Victory Point(s)”).

4.2.1.2. The Points for a Win are calculated based on:

- the difference in ranking (ATP/WTB), as defined before the start of the Tournament, between the players in the Participant’s team and their current opponents in the Tournament (hereinafter referred to as “Point(s) for Rankings”)
- the number of additional yellow balls allocated by the Participant assigned to the players before the start of their matches:

- Two (2) Additional Yellow Balls = Points for Ranking x 3
- One (1) Additional Yellow Ball = Point(s) for Ranking x 2
- None (0) Additional Yellow Ball= Point(s) for Ranking x 1,

4.2.1.3 Case of a player’s abandonment during the Tournament.

If a player withdraws his/her match against the player selected, the Participant wins all victory points.

4.2.1.4 Case of a player’s withdrawal the Tournament.

If a player is forfeit before the start of his/her match, no victory points will be awarded to the participant who have selected that player.

4.2.2 Points won in the “Duration Challenge”

4.2.2.1. In each Round of the Tournament, Participants will have the opportunity to answer a bonus question in order to win additional points. For this “Duration Challenge”, the Participant must guess the duration of a player's match which he/she must choose from the members of his/her team.

4.2.3 How to take part in the “Duration Challenge”

Participants must use one (1) Yellow Ball to enter a “Duration Challenge” in any Round. Participants may enter just one (1) Duration Challenge per Round.

Participants must choose a player from their team who is still in the tournament, and whose next match has not yet started.

The Participants must guess the duration of their chosen player’s next match, with the aim of getting as close as possible to the actual match duration.

The Participants may change their Duration Challenge answer up until their chosen player’s match begins.

The Participants may replace their chosen player before their match begins, and before the match of their replacement Duration Challenge player begins.

Finally, Participants may cancel their Duration Challenge entry before the start of their chosen player’s match. In this case, the Participant will recover one Yellow Ball, which they can then use for another match.

4.2.4 Allocation of Duration Challenge points

A number of points to play for will be allocated to every Duration Challenge (hereinafter, the “Points to play for in the Duration Challenge”), and a number of points will be deducted according to the difference between the Participant’s Prediction and the Duration Challenge Answer (hereinafter, the “Points lost in the Duration Challenge”).

- The number of points at stake in one (1) Duration Challenge is 200 (two hundred) points, regardless of the Round of the game.
- The number of points lost in one (1) Duration Challenge is determined by the number of minutes’ difference between the Prediction and the exact Answer.
 - For women’s matches: five (5) points lost for every minute’s difference
 - For men’s matches: three (3) points lost for every minute’s difference

Examples:

- Duration Challenge for a men’s match:

Prediction: 2 hrs 30 min

Actual duration (Answer): 2 hrs 05 min

Difference = 25 minutes

Penalty = $25 \times 3 = 75$ points

Number of points won in the Duration Challenge = $200 - 75 = 125$ points

- Duration Challenge for a women’s match:

Prediction: 1 hr 30 min

Actual duration (Answer): 1 hr 15 min

Difference = 15 minutes

Penalty = $15 \times 5 = 75$ points

Number of points won in the Duration Challenge = $200 - 75 = 125$ points

c) Participants can only earn a positive number of points in the Duration Challenge: no negative numbers of points will be awarded. If the penalty exceeds the number of points at stake (200 points), the Participant will be awarded 0 (zero) points for the Duration Challenge.

4.2.5 Player retirement and withdrawal from Duration Challenge matches

If a Participant has chosen a player who then retires during the Round concerned in a Duration Challenge, or if the Participant has selected a player whose opponent retires during the Round in question, the match duration will be calculated up to the time the match stops.

If a Participant has chosen a player for their Duration Challenge whose match is cancelled due to the withdrawal of said player or of their opponent from the match, the Participant will be awarded zero Points for the Duration Challenge.
